

Patton Square Park Playground Open for Business!

By Cynthia Sulaski

On September 14, more than 100 people gathered on a beautiful fall afternoon to celebrate our newly enhanced playground at Patton Square Park. Several neighborhood kids opened the event by cutting the ribbon with golden scissors, kids got their faces painted, many ate yummy cupcakes and ice cream, and everyone enjoyed the music performed by Ants, Ants, Ants.

Thanks to Portland Parks & Recreation, the Overlook Neighborhood Association, Fairfield Residential, Firelight Yoga and the Ivy School for engaging the community through their tabling activities. And we give a special shout-out to Todd Lofgren (PP&R's deputy director) for representing Commissioner Fish and Portland Parks & Recreation, significant partners in this project.

Thanks again to all who made this project and party a huge success. If you haven't visited the park and playground lately, please stop by to appreciate our new amenities. And ring those chimes!

Going & Greeley: Derailment, Repairs, and More Construction

by Brad Halverson

On Saturday, September 7, a Union Pacific train pulling a line of tank cars containing LP gas derailed into the Going Street Bridge onto Swan Island. Thankfully there was no major issue with the LP gas tanker cars, but the impact of the engines on the bridge was significant.

The middle section of the bridge is the old 2-lane road built in 1930 while the outer sections on either side were added in 1976. All three sections were connected back a decade ago to better withstand an earthquake. The really good news is the bridge is still standing! Portland Bureau of Transportation was able to reopen one lane each way by the next weekday commute and then another lane onto the island the following week. PBOT is trying to add a second lane heading up the hill soon, but there is limited room to work with an active rail line underneath complicating the situation.

Repairs will occur at night to minimize the traffic impact. The contract to repair the damage has been let, and PBOT hopes to have all the lanes on the bridge open in the Spring. Watch for construction in the area. The city will pursue Union Pacific to pay for the repairs.

Also, the derailment occurred just as construction of the long-planned multi-use path next to the bluff on Greeley Avenue between Going Street and Interstate Avenue had started. That slowed the project until the damage assessment from the derailment was complete. The lane on Greeley next to the bluff will be closed during construction of the path. Please be careful in the construction zones. The path should be open next spring.

Adidas America will add a cycle track to the west side of Greeley from Willamette Boulevard to Going as part of their campus construction too. Once the projects north and south of Going are connected by a diagonal bicycle signal on Greeley over Going, walking and cycling along Greeley should be much safer than before. Until then, pedestrians and bicyclists should avoid Greeley between adidas and Interstate by using Willamette from Greeley to Concord Avenue or Interstate.

You can receive updates from PBOT about these and all of their projects by signing up for their distribution list at bit.ly/PBOT-Updates. If you are already signed up, you can sign in and update the list of projects and events you want to read about.

MEET THE NEW 2019-20 OKNA BOARD

Alexandra Degher
CHAIR

Hello Overlook Neighbors. My name is Alexandra Degher and I'm the new Overlook Neighborhood Association chair, trying to fill the shoes of Chris Trejbal who put an admirable amount of time and effort into this role over the past three years. I'd like to thank our new board members who have stepped up to volunteer their time and our longstanding board members who have and still do work hard to make Overlook a great place to live.

As for me, I grew up in Flagstaff, Ariz. where I played a lot of tennis, hiked, skied, mountain biked and in general got a lot of sun. From Arizona I moved to Corvallis where I got my Ph.D. in environmental engineering, played a bit of tennis and in general got a lot of rain. Luckily, I found out that I prefer the rain, so after grad school, I decided to stay in Oregon and eventually ended up in Overlook where I have been for the past 10 years.

Volunteering became important to me after going through a major surgery in 2004. It made me assess what I valued and how I could help people, animals and the planet. I volunteered for several organizations including the Oregon Humane Society and Friendly House. In 2017, I decided I wanted to make more of a difference in my neighborhood so I ran for the OKNA board. Over the past two years, I served as secretary, transportation chair, sustainability chair and vice chair. And now here I am, happy to be supporting a great organization that has done so many important things over the decades.

For my day job, I work in the environmental group at HP currently managing the implementation of our carbon neutral program. Sustainability is very important to me. As such, one small change I will make as chair is to no longer offer printed agendas at our meetings. As digital chair, Chris will post agendas to the OKNA website the Sunday before our general and board meetings where you can download a copy to your phone or print out a copy if preferred. If you'd like to get the agenda in your inbox, subscribe to our weekly neighborhood update email by sending a request to vicechair@overlookneighborhood.org. As I take on new responsibilities as chair, I am excited to have May Wallace take the lead on environmental issues as OKNA's new sustainability chair.

We have a lot going on in our neighborhood, and the OKNA Board is working hard, but we would love to have your help. Our weighty topics are getting weightier (homelessness, transportation, development and sustainability) and the things that make our community more livable (parks, events, public safety, etc.) are getting more and more important. If you have any interest in volunteering for one of these committees, please contact me (chair@overlookneighborhood.org) and I will connect you with the appropriate chair.

I look forward to a happy and healthy 2019-20 for Overlook neighbors. Cheers!

Christian Trejbal
VICE CHAIR

I just finished three years serving as the OKNA board chair and look forward to continuing to serve the neighborhood this year as we make progress on important projects and issues. I manage OKNA's digital communications, including the weekly email update. I live near Madrona Park and adidas with my wife and cat. I am a professional writer, editor and political consultant. In my spare time I golf, cook and garden.

Brad Halverson
TREASURER

My family has lived on North Court for almost 30 years, and I have worked for Kaiser mostly in the neighborhood for longer than that. My interest in transportation-related issues gave me the motivation to be involved in OKNA. I have used my years of interaction with PBOT, ODOT to help make the infrastructure work as well as possible. I look forward to helping make people aware and solving problems when possible.

Marci Macfarlane
SECRETARY

I'm currently on the North Portland Tool Library board, I was on the board of the Portland Highland Games Association for about 25 years, including VP of Operations for 5 years. My Husband and I worked with the community to make the Pittman Addition HydroPark. I have been volunteering for various organizations since I was about 15 years old. My parents instilled in me that volunteering was the best way to get involved and to make the change you want to see.

Casey Boggs

Since 2011, my family has lived in the Overlook Neighborhood. Living near Overlook Park and the Overlook House gives me and my neighbors a true appreciation for this community. My passion for this neighborhood is strong, and I'll continue to offer input into what's in the best interest of residents. In my spare time, I'm a full-time dad and offer my time and talents to several local nonprofits.

Alan Cranna

I have lived in Overlook my whole life. I have served as an area representative and as OKNA's chair and vice-chair in the past. I also have worked on the annual clean-up and other events for years. Currently I help oversee distribution of the Overlook Views quarterly newsletter with Carol Cushman.

Julia Metz

I've lived in Portland for over seven years, with nearly half of those in Overlook. As an affordable housing developer for a local nonprofit, I'm excited to bring my experience to the OKNA board as the Land Use Chair. When I'm not advocating for more equitable housing opportunities or nerding out on zoning code, I'm usually out enjoying our beautiful region on a run or hike with my dog.

Toby Morus

As a former field organizer for Bernie Sanders, congressional field director and campaign manager, I've always sought to build a better world. I'm excited to join the OKNA board to develop connections and work together to strengthen our community. When not organizing, you'll find me traveling Latin America, trail running with my dog Rosie, skiing, biking or hanging out with friends.

Alexandra Penney

I have lived in Overlook since 2008 with my husband Jerome. I love this neighborhood, the beauty, history and the people. I have been a registered nurse for over 20 years and currently serve as a leader in patient safety and risk management for a large local health system. In my free time you will find me in the garden getting my hands dirty or marveling at the wildlife.

John Parks

I am a native Portlander and have lived in the neighborhood for more than 40 years. I am honored to serve on the board and to help Overlook thrive.

Peter Parks

My wife May Wallace and I have lived in our house in Overlook for 26 years. We have two adult children who live in Portland. I am especially interested in how homeless people are treated. I enjoy camping, photography and videography. I prefers to get around on an old motorcycle or a bicycle.

Justin Roshak

I moved to Portland in April 2019 from a town in New Hampshire much smaller than Overlook. I'm former local journalist and writer with a passion for local democracy. I hope to learn and contribute to the community as a member of the board.

George Spaulding

My wife Carolyn and I moved to Overlook from Corvallis in 1980. I have worked for the City of Portland for 26 years and retired in 2014. I have been involved in the Overlook Neighborhood Association for over 25 years. I strongly believe that all community members should have an active involvement in how they want their neighborhood to evolve and progress.

Cynthia Sulaski

As a Chicago native, I understand the value that parks and green space bring to the livability of a community (thank you for setting the bar high, Daniel Burnham). For over 20 years, I have focused my time and energy primarily into adding, enhancing, and protecting trees, trails, parks and green space in the Overlook neighborhood.

May Wallace

I am a retired high school art teacher, artist and avid backpacker. I am the chair of the Sustainability Committee and am particularly concerned about the safety and environmental ramifications of the oil trains traveling in our neighborhood.

Ask Addie

Good advice for good neighbors
by Addie Humbert

I'm wondering why certain side streets and sidewalks are unpaved. Examples include Jessup & N Gay, N Holman & N Detroit. There are also prominent examples near NE Alberta. Is this due to neighbor or city decisions? -A.M.

The city of Portland has more than 50 miles of unpaved city streets and another 200 miles of paved streets that lack a curb and sidewalks. In the Overlook Neighborhood, we have about a half mile of unpaved streets (that's about 1.5 percent of all our total roadways). How these streets escaped paving over all these years is a bit of a mystery, but it likely has something to do with the way Portland grew.

As land was annexed and became part of the city, developers (especially those closer to the city center) were required to pave roads where they wanted to build. Some streets clearly slipped through the cracks and those cracks haven't always filled, especially in traditionally underserved neighborhoods. Once a street had been paved, the City of Portland takes over its maintenance, but gravel roads have historically existed in a bit of a no man's land: no pavement meant no funds for upkeep. Although the unimproved roadways are part of the city's public right of way, the city has required that adjacent residents foot the bill.

The city has initiated several programs over the years to encourage neighbors to take ownership over the roads. If neighbors set up a Local Improvement District (LID), for example, the city will help with permitting and paving the roads, though the work must be up to city code and the neighbors are ultimately responsible for paying for the work. In some instances, neighbors have also been able to create small city "parklets" in place of the roadway if all the adjacent neighbors buy in.

As you might imagine, Portlanders have been asking the city to take on the costs of maintaining these roads for as long as they've existed. Plans have been promised and abandoned many times over. But in 2016, after myriad community requests and studies of how the deteriorating gravel roads impact on stormwater runoff, the City of Portland initiated a new system of maintenance.

The Gravel Street Service, from the Portland Bureau of Transportation, began last year. The service will fill in ruts and grade the road surface on a repeating three year cycle (though residents are still technically responsible for upkeep otherwise). North Portland gravel roads are slated to be completed in 2019 and 2020. If you want to go stomp around in the puddles or chance it with your car's suspension, now is the time.

What is the deal with leaf pickup in Portland? Do I have to fit them all in my green bin or will the city come and get them? -L.T.

The Portland Bureau of Transportation collects leaves as part of their Leaf Day Service. If you live in one of 52 leaf districts with a high concentration of mature trees (this is around one third of Portland homes), the city will remove leaves from the street on one or two designated days each fall. Historically there has been an extra fee associated with leaf pick up day, but starting in 2018 the city made the service free for all those who live in the designated districts.

Here in Overlook, neighbors living in the triangle south of Going Street and west of Interstate Avenue are in leaf district N 9 and their pick up day this year is December 18. The day before your scheduled pick up, rake all of your leaves onto the street in front of your house, being careful to leave a foot of space curbside for storm run off. Try to move your car and any other obstacles (tree limbs, basketball hoops) to make it easier for the trucks to access your street.

For the rest of us in Overlook? All leaves should go in your regular green bin. And no, they won't all fit but please don't rake them into the street. The leaves won't be picked up, it's against city code, and all you'll do is clog your storm drains.

Santa Visits Historic Overlook House

Mark your calendars. Jolly old St. Nick will make his annual stop at the Historic Overlook House Sunday December 8. He will arrive by fire truck at 11:00 a.m.

Have your picture taken with Santa and clue him in on what you want for Christmas. Children's entertainment from 11:15 to 12:45, and don't miss our fantastic face-painter. This popular event is free to our neighbors and is brought to you by Friends of Overlook House, which appreciates donations to keep this resource going. See you there!

Welcoming the Ivy School to the Neighborhood

by Chelsea Snow

Last February, the Portland Public Schools Board unanimously voted to revoke its sponsorship of Trillium Charter School after 17 years, due to declining enrollment and test scores. The school, located at 5420 N Interstate Ave. closed last spring. While many families were impacted by this closure, another charter school has purchased the property and has already opened its doors in its place.

Reconizable for its sculpted cob walls with little round peepholes, mosaics and a thatched roof, the school sits at the busy intersection of N Interstate and Killingsworth Avenue. The 21,000-square-foot building offers a large, paved fenced-in courtyard and bark chip play area and has allowed the school, which moved from NW Portland, to expand to offer a Montessori education for grades K-8.

The basic idea in the Montessori philosophy of education is that “all children carry unseen within themselves the person they will become. In order to develop their unique physical, emotional, intellectual and spiritual powers to the fullest, they must have freedom; a freedom achieved through order and self-discipline.”

The Ivy School is a public charter sponsored by the Oregon Department of Education (not PPS), and is tuition-free. They are currently fully enrolled with 300 students, which is the maximum number that their charter allows. The charter is currently up for renewal, and they are hoping that with the renewal the maximum number of students increases so that they can welcome more students into their school in the coming years as they continue to expand in their new location.

Nikki Jones, the executive director of the school says that they are very happy to be in the Overlook Neighborhood, and have found friendly, helpful neighbors in all directions. They are excited to grow and serve the community. Tours for prospective families will be available starting in November, and you can visit their website: theivyschool.org to learn more and apply for the 2020 lottery.
